

SFASA's 2018 Conference

Saturday, November 17, 2018, 8 am-5 pm • Stanford University LKS Center

What: SFASA's annual day-long conference focuses on planning for the support for Bay Area adults with autism and related developmental disabilities. We expect about 40 presenters and 400 attendees.

Who: Our conferences are aimed at parents and professionals who have responsibilities to support and help make plans for adults with autism. Parents of teens who are planning for adulthood are also encouraged to register.

What's the conference like? Mainstage sessions in the Large conference room, with breakouts in the classrooms And lecture halls within the building. The day is packed with information, and features information tables hosted by sponsors.

Will it be taped? The mainstage sessions will be recorded and uploaded to this site following the event.

Will it be livestreamed? Mainstage sessions will be livestreamed for free at our Facebook page.

Is Spanish translation available? Yes, live Spanish translation will be available via phone line inside the event and synced with the livestream.

How much? Full-day tickets (8am-5pm) are $75 and include coffee and lunch; Afternoon passes (1-5pm) are $35 and include coffee. Scholarships available.

Please contact Maria Torres 408-762-8565 & Barbara Reyes 408-762-8959

Where is it? The event takes place at the beautiful, state-of-the-art Li Ka Shing Center, 291 Campus Drive,
Stanford University

near the Medical Center. Please note that parking is located about 10 minutes from the Center, in lot L18 off Welch Road (parking is free at Stanford on Saturdays). Handicap spots are available in front of LKS, off Campus Drive.

Registrants will receive detailed information before the event.

